Mutilation of cattle remains mystery

DALLAS (AP) — Cattle owners and investigators are puzzling over a new series of cattle mutilation slayings in Texas.

The problem, investigators say, is that there is little or no precedent for such crimes and therefore they have nothing to go on in the search for those responsible.

"We don't have any idea who could be doing this. If we were dealing with thefts then we'd start looking among the known thieves. This is different," said Slim Hulen, investigator for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

The mutilations have been reported in Texas, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, about 18 cases of mutilated cattle have been reported in Texas alone.

Hulen said he has heard reports that a Satanist group may be responsible because of the removal of sex organs or the draining of blood in some cases.

But, he said, "that's part of the problem. Who knows such people? Who knows for a certainty how such people operate? Where do you find people like that? We just really don't have anything to put our hands on. It could be someone heard about these things and we have copycats at work. We just really need some hard information to work on."

Some examples:

—A 750-pound Charolais bull was found in Anderson County, Tex., on Sunday with its sex organs, excretory organs, ears and tongue missing. The hide on one shoulder had been peeled back, and all blood had been drained from the carcass in an unexplained manner.

—A large cow was found Monday near Tyler, Tex. The cow, which was seven months' pregnant, was missing its vulva and tongue. No blood was found around the carcass and its fetus had been removed.

—An Angus cow was mutilated in a similar manner in Hopkins County, Tex., last month.

Hopkins County Sheriff Paul Jones said he is stepping up his probe in light of what he feels are the acts of an occult Satanist's group.

"We found out this much, a part of the ceremonial rite is drinking the blood of the animal while it is warm and often decapitating whatever is killed," Jones said.

Unemployed auto workers staging antirecession rally in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 10,000 auto workers, most of them unemployed, are rallying here to tell the government they have a better idea than President Ford's for getting their industry and others back to work.

Stung by the layoffs of nearly 300,000 members, leaders of the United Auto Workers union are busing in workers from as far away as Michigan and flying in others from Texas and California for today's rally.

The UAW will offer its own antirecession program calling for big tax cuts for low and middle-income workers and a massive public service jobs program, among other things.

"We must have immediate responses to the people's needs from the incoming Congress and the administration," UAW President Leonard Woodcock said in calling the rally.

"There is vast human suffering and frightening insecurity behind the cold statistics of massive, still rising layoffs," he declared.

The auto workers were to hear from a host of congressional leaders, mostly Democrats, who were invited to the rally at the Washington Armory. Ford administration officials also were invited but a UAW spokesman said it was uncertain if any would attend.

Woodcock has said if the protest fails to produce "positive action out of the government" he would be back in the spring to march in the streets with 200,000 to 250,000 workers from his union and others.

The rally is the latest sign of unrest in the ranks of organized labor over the nation's ailing economy. Two weeks ago the AFL-CIO called its general board into emergency session here to publicize the plight of the unemployed and offer its plan for turning the economy around.

Leaders of the electrical, tobacco and textile unions also have called for mass demonstrations.

Simon urges boost in business investment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today the government must place more emphasis on encouraging business investment and curb growth in such programs as social security, welfare and government payrolls.

Warning that "some margin of economic slack must remain for a period of years to insure that inflation can be squeezed out gradually," Simon said the eventual return to economic stability depends on growth in the nation's productive capacity.

"We are not providing adequate incentives for new investment," he said in testimony prepared for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress. "It is not unfair to say that we are in a profits depression in this country."

Corporate profits were up by 71 per cent in face value last year, Simon said, but after adjusting the increase for inflation, profits actually declined by 50 per cent.

Profits provide the money for new investment and expanded productive capacity, Simon said. "Yet, as a nation, we are rapidly expanding public payments to individuals but neglecting to provide adequate incentives for new investment."

Public payments to individuals include social security, government payrolls and retirement benefits, which contain cost-of-living clauses which President Ford has proposed capping as a spending curb.

Simon said the current recession will probably wind up as the worst since World War II, but "I think there is no prospect whatsoever of a long and deep economic downturn on the scale of the 1930s."

President Ford's economists admit they have been caught by surprise by the extent of the nation's sharp recessions and say future predictions are subject to "an unusually wide margin of error."

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers made the admission Tuesday as Ford sent Congress an economic message that declared, "The economy is in a serious recession."

The report warned of higher unemployment yet and said Americans face a reduction in their standard of living.

However, Ford said at an Atlanta news conference that he believes the economy will improve faster than some experts have forecast. He predicted the economy will improve enough next year to justify his seeking election in 1976 for a full term as chief executive.

Ford's advisers say their predictions were off base in part because automobile sales slumped badly in the fourth quarter of 1974 and the auto industry was "in a state of collapse."

"Why this happened is still not entirely clear," they added, although they mentioned a $400 average increase in auto prices for 1975 models as one probable cause.

Greenspan said the steep fourth quarter slide last year will continue through the first three months of 1975, hopefully to be followed late in the year by an economic recovery. But the economic report said all such forecasts are subject "to an unusually wide margin of error."

"The momentum of the decline is so great that a quick turn-around and a strong recovery in economic activity are not yet assured," the report said.

Meanwhile, sales figures from three of the four major auto makers indicated that the industry remains bogged down in its worst slump since World War II, despite the new cash rebate plans. Total January sales were estimated at 456,000, a 17 per cent drop from a disappointing 550,907 during the fuel shortage-plagued month of January 1974.

In other economic and energy developments:

—House tax-writers refused to kill the controversial oil and gas depletion allowance, but said it would be considered later.

—The House rejected an attempt to delay President Ford's oil import tariff program by linking the postponement with legislation the administration needs to raise the national debt limit. The House is expected to approve a separate measure today to postpone the tariff program, and the question is whether the vote will be large enough to override Ford's promised veto.

—For the third time in two months the Federal Reserve Board lowered the interest rate banks must pay to borrow money from the central account. The Fed reduced the discount rate from 7.25 per cent to 6.75 per cent in a move to spur the economy.

—The House rejected President Ford's proposal to raise food stamp prices and voted instead to keep food stamp costs frozen for the remainder of the year. The Senate is expected to approve the move later this week.

Goldwater labels Ford's budget 'complete disaster'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said today President Ford's proposed $349 billion budget is a "complete disaster."

In a statement, Goldwater, who was scheduled to speak later today in Chicago, said he would like to support the President but doesn't believe the nation's economy can stand what he called Ford's attack on its solvency.

"I must join those millions of Americans in both parties who see complete disaster in the budget proposed," Goldwater declared.

Ford's budget calls for a $51.9 billion deficit. Goldwater said passage of a national health insurance bill and enlarged tax reduction could make the deficit soar to between $70 billion and $100 billion.

"Where does the money come from?" Goldwater asked.

"The total debt of this country, private and public, already approaches the total money supply of the nation, and as one who has been in business, when you ever begin to approach a situation like that, the term applied is 'bankruptcy.'"

Court ruling may force big tax increases

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Residents of some Illinois counties could face huge increases in their local property taxes as a result of a recent court decision, says a top state official.

Frank A. Kirk, director of the Department of Local Government Affairs, has sent letters to 68 of the state's 102 counties warning officials of possible tax hikes because of the decision Jan. 17 in Lake County Circuit Court.

The counties facing possible increases, Kirk said in an interview, are those which assess property at less than 42 per cent of its actual value.

Populous St. Clair County, for example, could have its taxes increased by nearly 41 per cent, Kirk said. Taxes could jump 67 per cent in Johnson County and 49 per cent in Pope County, he said.

On the other hand, such counties as Peoria, Champaign, Kankakee, Morgan, Sangamon, Macon, Winnebago, McLean and Vermillion would face little or no increase because they currently assess around the 42 per cent level, he said.

Kirk said he has asked the attorney general to file an immediate appeal of Judge Harry Strouse's order, which he said would force him to raise assessment levels in counties currently below the 42 per cent level.

Kirk said he thought Judge Strouse picked the 42 per cent figure because of a mistaken idea that this was the state average. Actually, he said, the average is around 40 per cent.

The DLGA director said that if an appeal is denied he will seek an immediate hearing before the Illinois Supreme Court.

An unforced state law requires all counties to assess property at 50 per cent of its actual value for taxing purposes.

Kirk's department is charged with the responsibility of bringing any underassessing county up to the 50 per cent level by issuing a numerical factor called a multiplier.

In fact, however, Kirk froze all multipliers shortly after he was appointed to his post by Gov. Daniel Walker. He said the existing multipliers allowed assessment levels throughout the state to range between 25 per cent to 50 per cent and that attempts to comply with the law would cause tax increases in nearly every county.

Kirk said the suit in Lake County was filed by a property owner unhappy about variations in assessment levels within the county.

Kirk's concern about the possible effect of the Lake County court decision has been echoed by Maurice W. Scott, executive vice president of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois and a widely consulted expert on property taxes.

In his latest newsletter, Scott urged the Illinois General Assembly to consider immediate lowering of the required assessment level from 50 per cent to 40 per cent.

Scott pointed out that a taxpayer's suit forced the General Assembly in 1971 to lower the required assessment level from 100 per cent to 50 per cent.

"This was done to maintain the status quo and to prevent huge and runaway increases in property taxes. Now . . . we are confronted with a similar situation. A similar case is before the Circuit Court of Lake County and conditions are ripe for a decision that could really hurt the taxpayer's pocketbook," Scott said.

Two factors are involved in the amount of property taxes paid by a property owner: the assessed valuation of the property and the tax rate.

The tax rate may be translated as the amount of money a property owner must pay for every $100 worth of property.

Thus increasing levels of assessment do not necessarily mean an increase in property tax bills if tax rates are lowered a corresponding amount. But Kirk and other experts agree this seldom happens and that increased assessment levels almost always mean higher taxes.

Kirk said the Lake County decision, if upheld, would force him to raise multipliers in many counties. He said the percentage increase in the multiplier would closely reflect the increase in taxes for those counties. Here are some of the percentage increases Kirk said might be necessary:

Adams 6 per cent, Alexander 31, Calhoun 29.8, Champaign 12, Christian zero, Coles 13, DuPage 3.6, Franklin 35, Hamilton 31, Henry 9.8, Jackson 29, Kane 6.7, Kankakee zero, Knox 65, LaSalle 3.19, Lee zero, Livingston zero, McDonough zero, McLean zero, Macon zero, Marion 13, Montgomery 16, Peoria zero, Rock Island 5.7, St. Clair 41, Sangamon 2.9, Tazewell zero, Vermillion zero, Warren zero, Whiteside zero, Winnebago zero, Woodford 20.8.

Kirk said his department did not have enough information to predict accurately the possible increases in several counties, including Cook, Jefferson, Lake, McHenry, Madison and Will.

Dixon firefighter Gene McCaffrey opens a passageway in the Frances Nafziger home after fire broke out in a bathroom Tuesday afternoon. Located at 1008 S. Lincoln Ave., the home is rented by Steven Troxell. Officials blamed downed power lines for shorting the home's wiring system, which blew out a bulb above a medicine cabinet causing it to ignite a basket of clothing below. Extensive damage was reported in the bathroom area. Two neighboring homes, owned by H. B. Allen, 1311 Christiana Ter., and Raymond Daniels, 921 S. Lincoln Ave., sustained electrical damage believed caused by the downed lines. A basement water pipe at the Allen home burst after a ground wire came in contact with it and a fuse box at the Daniels residence sustained minor wire damage. Fire officials believe a passing truck snagged power lines, causing them to topple to the ground. Repair crews from Commonwealth Edison were sent to the scene to restore service. (Telegraph Photo)

Move against filibuster

For the past 58 years it has been necessary for two-thirds of the Senate to stop a senator in continuous talking to keep the Senate from stopping a filibuster. If a senator does not want the Senate to vote on any law he thinks is wrong, he can occupy the platform until the Senate gives up on the objectionable law, or two-thirds vote against him.

Senator Mondale (D-Minn.) proposes a rule that it would take only three-fifths of the Senate to break up a filibuster.

Both Illinois liberal Senators Percy and Stevenson voted with Senator Mondale and many other socialists.

Senator James Allen (D-Ala.) is filibustering Mondale's rule. The liberals now want Nelson Rockefeller, Vice President, to rule the Senate is not a continuous body so they could break this old rule.

If Rockefeller rules it is not a continuous body, the liberals could stop Senator Allen with a simple majority vote.

Liberals like Sen. Charles Percy are making it necessary for the conservative people of America to form a new party that will do what the voters want them to do.

There's no puzzle like an Arab puzzle

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Our country faces the Arab puzzle in the explosive Middle East. And as one who has lived for long periods in the Arab world—in the towns and cities and deep in the deserts—there is no puzzle quite equal to the Arab.

Their forefathers, unarmored, defeated even the armored Barbarians, nor did they retreat after centuries of contest with the Crusaders. Indian Mussulmen hold the same faith, but do not die in battle for it. They founded at least three empires, survived all three and still went back to their herbleless lands.

When Allah created the world he took a handful of dust in either hand. He cast one handful to the right, one to the left. The dust to the right would be happy people. The dust cast left would become people destined to live in misery's dark cave. Thus you encountered throughout the Arab world a perpetual emphasis on the delusion of human destiny.

The desert has also profoundly shaped the character of the Arab, creating in many a feeling of loneliness that turns them inward. They are forced to live in their day-dreams, mostly a Koran-like heaven where Allah is bountiful.

Many can rid themselves of their hostilities by making elaborate brimstone threats they do not intend to carry out; they live in a popping fairyland where one paper dragon after another goes up in smoke. Yet they combine with this a bedouin ideal of courage and hospitality, for to be regarded as inhospitable is among the worst sins.

The "assabiyya"—permitting you to call another your brother—is a kinship looked upon as sacred. The sheiks practice the ancient Law of the Tent. You must extend your home's hospitality to your enemy for three days. Then anything can happen if he has been foolish enough to deliver himself into your hands.

At the same time, the Arab is the supreme individualist. Witness the Arab mounted on a great Arabian horse, riding with that blending of man and animal which goes back thousands of years. Give him a polo mallet and a ball, "Ahiki" is the Arab call as away he goes thundering down the field. But to form these great Arab riders into polo teams always has failed.

The Arab—the total individualist—simply will not share the ball.

The relationship between the nomad Arab and his camel, on which his very life so often depends, is likewise revealing. Not the slightest attachment exists in the nomad. The first thing he does when his camel dies is to turn its head toward Mecca and at once sets about selling the meat, for he is as fatalistic about the animal as about himself.

This fatalism mirrors itself in the Arabian attitude toward slavery. In Saudi Arabia's desert it is often more expensive to buy a camel than to buy a wife and, although often denied, there remain slaves of both sexes. In fact, a major objective of many slaves is to own slaves themselves and many slaves do.

The Arab world is a land lost to the past and still to be born in the future. Fatima, Muhammad's only daughter, the last wife of Bluebeard, remains worshipped as one of the four perfect women of Islam.

Yet in mosques, women are required to use a section surrounded by a wooden rail. Traditionally, a desert woman walks three paces behind her husband. And when riding is done, men do it; walking is for camels, donkeys and women.

Arabs throw dust on their heads to symbolize subservience and wave their shoes to express contempt. The women never do this. Often they are shrouded in the voluminous black "feredezah," their heads hidden under a "yashmak" hood with narrow slits for the eyes. On many oases they are veiled at nine. At 30 most are grandmothers.

"In sha'llah" (God willing) is the key word and philosophy in the Arab world. The conception means bowing to the inevitable. This is the Arab nature, nearly impossible for us Americans to grasp, against which President Ford and Secretary Kissinger are struggling.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

This is in regard to the Equal Rights Amendment which may be brought up in Springfield at any time.

According to the Chicago Tribune of Nov. 17, 1974, "Legal Abortion Loses Some of Its Proponents." "Many advocates of legal abortion, who at first were jubilant over the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion on demand, now think that decision may have gone too far, according to a leading expert on fetal research." The expert is Dr. Robert E. Cooke of the U. of Wisconsin and head of the Federal Government's National Commission for the Protection of Human Subjects. He says what has changed the feelings of former supporters of legal abortion is the several hundred fetuses born alive each year as a result of abortion. A number have survived and a few have been adopted.

Nearly every state has passed or is trying to pass anti-abortion legislation. However, if the ERA is ratified, all anti-abortion laws will be repealed. Prof. Charles E. Rice of the Notre Dame Law School and a member of the National Advisory Board of the U.S. Coalition for Life, states that anti-abortion laws are obviously "sexist," therefore, a violation of ERA.

Are you curious as to who is behind the ERA movement? On March 1, 1974, the Rockefeller Foundation provided $288,000 to the California Commission on the Status of Women. In announcing the grant, Commission Chairwoman Anita Miller said it would be used for a "mass education process to inform Americans of the meaning and consequences of the ERA." Ms. Miller predicted ERA will be "the single most significant event of this century." It will bring about a dimension of change greater than ever before. Playboy Magazine is also involved. At the Illinois Legislative hearing in 1974, it was revealed that substantial cash contributions and use of Playboy postage meter for mailings all over the state have been supplied by Playboy Magazine to ERA headquarters in Chicago.

President Ford, in signing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Amendments of 1974, gave HEW authority to spend millions of dollars annually for "desexing" textbooks. This means that pictures and stories will no longer portray women in the home but will replace them with women in "active" roles (such as construction, etc.). Our young women will be "liberated" whether "they want to be or not."

An interesting item from the Religious News Service of December 1974, reports that Pat Goltz of the Columbus, Ohio, chapter of National Organization for Women (NOW) was expelled because of her opposition to abortion. Ms. Goltz charges that NOW denied her right of freedom of speech and that the feminist movement in general used social ostracism on dissenters. Ms. Goltz says she has been rebuffed in her attempts to use NOW channels to air her views on abortion.

Virginia, Oklahoma and Louisiana have recently rejected ERA. Let's make Illinois do the same. Write your legislators now and tell them to vote "No" on ERA!

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mrs. D. C. Stephansson

The Lee County Farm Bureau salutes those people of retirement age that have contributed so much toward the betterment of our country. Quite often, people are so busy with the day to day problems of making a living that they forget about those who travelled the paths before us. Countless numbers of old people languish forgotten in their homes, hospitals, or nursing homes lamenting memories of times past and lost loved ones. Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—United Press International reported Tuesday President Ford gave his first indication he would bargain with Congress over differences in tax cuts.

The Associated Press also reported from Atlanta that Ford would compromise his version of tax cuts with what Congress might come up with.

House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Oregon, demurely upstaged the President on Sunday's NBC program Meet the Press when he cautiously said there are areas of negotiation between the Congress and the President on Ford's tax package.

Ullman was replying to a reporter's question which noted he and the President had met last week and asked the congressman if they had talked about areas of compromise should Congress amend the President's proposals for tax cuts.

With the heavy Democratic majorities in Congress, this is probably the first of several compromises Ford will have to ponder, if he wants to get anything through the legislative branch which he can, in good conscience, sign into law.

Just for openers, the House Ways and Means Committee is very likely to vote for the House to consider the request for hiking the ceiling of the federal debt along with bill to end oil depletion deductions for tax purposes by oil companies.

Ullman, himself, says he is opposed to tying these two questions together, but predicts the committee will send them out together and the House will vote on them together.

Ullman wants to consider the emergency tax rebate and tax cut proposals first and get some money back to people as early as May.

Then he proposes to take up a tax reform package and after this has been delivered to the House, he wants his committee to dig into a comprehensive plan for solving the energy problem.

The Democratic powerhouse has already given some thought to energy proposals.

He thinks Ford's plan for the U.S. to become self-sufficient in energy production within 10 years is unrealistic.

Ullman also thinks there is no way for the country to reduce its oil imports by one million barrels per day next year and by two million barrels daily in 1977.

He believes the turnaround in our pattern of using oil should come about by quotas, which will eventually lead to rationing, rather than Ford's action to impose import fees which will raise the price of gasoline and heating fuels to consumers.

Ullman says Ford's action "will do a disservice to the economy by causing a ripple in the inflation pattern."

The House Ways and Means chairman hopes a quote system could be successfully imposed without resorting to rationing.

He would first call for voluntary measures such as Sunday closing of service stations.

The Oregon Democrat favors giving every car owner a certain amount of gasoline and charging a surtax of 40 to 50 cents per gallon for any gasoline used over the allocated amount.

Ullman is emphatic the energy problem is important and "we must face up to the (energy) issue and turn around our use pattern of oil."

He suggests it is necessary to seek out other forms of energy which can be converted for use as fossil fuels.

One of the urgencies Ullman sees in reducing our oil imports is because the high cost imposed by the Arab nations has aggravated the U.S. imbalance in foreign trade payments.

An imbalance in payments means a country has imported more value of goods than it has exported in a year.

The United States has long suffered an imbalance in payments caused by many factors, including foreign aid payments, the Vietnam war, in the late 1960s farming out contracts for producing components to be used in manufacturing to foreign companies.

Ullman points out our imports now cost $25 billion per year and have risen by several hundred percent in the last two years, which has increased our deficit in trade payments.

The benefit which might have occurred in the deficit of payments by the greatly increased exportation of agricultural products since 1972 has been more than offset by the steep rise in the cost of imported oil.

When it comes to energy it is a matter of national interest and congressmen and the President should be willing to bury political hatchets while dealing with the issue.

Another responsibility of the federal government is to solve the energy problem without gouging consumers at the windfall benefit to the multinational oil companies.

To date, oil companies have reaped record earnings during this oil crisis and consumers have been afflicted with shortages and higher prices.

The burden should be shared.

The good old election days

"Way back in the early 19th century, when America was a nation of farmers, legislation directed that national elections take place during the first week of November because 'harvesting is over then, and winter has not yet made the roads impassable.'"

Tuesday was designated instead of Monday, says the National Geographic Society's historical oddities division, because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Despite the vast changes that have overtaken America since then, there seems no particular reason to abandon the custom. At least one state, however, is going to consider doing away with another relic of the old days.

Ohio State Rep. John A. Galbraith plans to introduce legislation to allow liquor stores and bars in the state to operate normally on election day. At present, bars may open for business but can sell only low-powered beer.

The law was apparently passed to try to keep unscrupulous politicians from buying votes with drinks. "I think we have now advanced beyond that," says Galbraith.

Cynics would agree. These days the problem is not politicians buying votes but the other way around.

"Don't forget we're all in this together!"

Fall River's health improves

By HERMAN MELLO

FALL RIVER, Mass. (NEA)—One of the jewels of this old mill city's renaissance is an outpatient medical and dental care center created to serve the city's poor.

Even the jaundiced medical profession, sensitive to government encroachment in the health field, has given the facility a good rating.

The center is operated as a non-profit agency, under the Model Cities umbrella, and serves approximately 15 per cent of this city's population of 98,800.

The demand for the center was spearheaded by residents within the Model Cities area. It was developed in the year of preliminary planning for program priorities. The need for an outreach type of facility for preventive and diagnostic health care was one of the basic needs stressed. The delivery system evolved from a health care task force chaired by Robert Murray, administrator at Tufts Hospital.

The Medical Society was asked to participate in planning the center. But no one from the local medical establishment showed up at planning sessions. No official opposition of record was made, but the tacit rejection was evident.

There was an undercurrent of grumbling among doctors about competition and the questionable quality of service that the center would provide. Another root cause of the opposition was the question of money—the fear that the center would undercut standard fees.

The medical community indicated, moreover, that it would not accept referrals from the center.

Model Cities had to get the city's Health Department to sponsor the agency.

Model Cities Director Paul Poulos and the executive director of the Model Cities Service Center Board, James Donnelly, say the Health Center had to get Navy physicians from the Newport Base to staff the facility. The hiring of Dr. John O. Squillante as the center's director softened the skepticism of the medical community. The center's emphasis on a sliding fee scale based on income and economic means also helped.

The sliding fee schedule means most of the center's clients pay something, except those who can't afford anything. In some cases patients at the center pay as much as they would to a private physician. Referrals to the private sector are now quite common and the medical community has accepted the center and swallowed its objections.

The center's acceptance by local doctors is due to several factors. Foremost is the high quality of service and care provided by the center. So far the performance has withstood all critical evaluations.

Another basis for its success is the rapport existing between the medical profession and the center's full-time director, Dr. John Squillante, a native of Bristol, R.I.

The center is not a storefront operation. It is housed in a renovated mill office building, with easy accessibility, a sizeable staff and the most modern equipment in both the dental care and diagnostic areas.

Referrals to consultants supplement the center's facilities when X rays or more extensive tests are indicated.

The health care center is not a free clinic. Fees are based on a sliding scale, with income and economic status the determining factors. The base is the standard office fee charged by physicians and outpatient facilities in the city's three main hospitals.

The center also has a relationship with three schools—Dartmouth College, Brown University and Tufts University.

Supportive personnel at the center include three internists and two pediatricians. They come mostly from the Newport, R.I. Naval Base.

There is a full-time dentist, backed by a dental hygienist and dental assistant. The clinic has a long waiting list for dental care and dental checkups.

The full-time optometrist functions with a center that includes a refraction and visual screening room.

There is a registered nurse concentrating on health education, a pediatric nurse and director of nursing services and her assistant.

The emphasis is not only on diagnostic activities, but also on education and preventive medicine, particularly so in dental care.

The center has sponsored cancer, diabetes and hypertension detection clinics along with seminars on pediatrics and prenatal care.

Flu shots and comprehensive physicals for youngsters in Model Cities recreation programs and elementary school pupils, are also part of the general program.

Rebates not restricted to cars

NEW YORK (AP) — Seeking to lure a reluctant public into the market place, scores of companies are offering rebates and other cash incentives to purchasers of their products.

While most of the incentives center around the automotive industry, publishers, appliance makers, homebuilders, rental agents, banks and a boatbuilder, among others, have joined the latest marketing fashion.

Some rebates amount to real bargains, but industry in general has shown a strong resistance to outright price cuts. Some companies are caught in a bind — prices too high for buyers, too low for profits.

In New York, a builder is offering possession of homes six months before mortgage payments begin. An apartment house rental agent seeks to attract prospects by setting up four-figure bank accounts that they will receive upon successful completion of new leases.

General Electric Co. plans $2 to $5 rebates on certain small appliance purchases. Ferro Corp. has offered to pay employees 10 per cent of what they pay for major appliances bought before April 15.

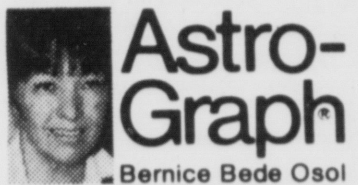

The most publicized rebates have been offered by auto makers. Manufacturers of accessory products have related programs to assist in selling cars.

The importance of the car to the economy was related in this way by Stuart Henderson Britt, a marketing consultant and professor at Northwestern University: "What happens in Detroit affects the size of tips in Wichita and retail sales in San Diego."

Buried in the effort to sell products are arguments against the use of electric energy, as with appliances, and against befouling the atmosphere, as with automotive exhaust. It is patriotic now to buy cars; cars move the economy.

For the time being, the economic problem is foremost. Surveys show the public has lost confidence, and when that happens people retrench. Illustrative of this, the savings rate is extremely high, more than 8 per cent, despite rising joblessness.

Breast Cancer Health Quiz

THIRD IN A SERIES:
Q:
Do Breast Injuries Cause Cancer?

ANSWER: There has never been a proven case of breast cancer arising from an area of injury.

However, because the breast is in an exposed position, it is subject to frequent injury. It is protected from most blows because the delicate breast structure is surrounded by fat and a tough substance called fibrous tissue. Protection also comes from the skin which covers the whole breast.

Occasionally there may be bleeding beneath the skin, which can cause a discoloration or even a mass. This can be very frightening... but it is not cancer.

There is no connection between the development of breast cancer and injuries to the breast.

The breast is also subject to inflammations, irritations or infections. Sometimes an abscess requiring surgical treatment may form. None of these has any relation to breast cancer.

How to Get Your Breast Cancer Booklet From Our Newspaper

The question and answer guidelines in this series are taken from "Breast Cancer Is Curable—Early Detection Is the Key"—now available to our readers at 75 cents per copy (3 for $2). The booklet is an authoritative, easy-to-follow 32-page condensation of Dr. Philip Strax's new hard-cover book just published at $5.95 by Harper & Row. The American Cancer Society recommends it as a comprehensive, step-by-step life-saving guide.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was 14 our family doctor found that I had an "adolescent" goiter. He prescribed iodine drops, but nothing changed so I stopped.

A few years later a different doctor prescribed a black iodine salve that was to be rubbed into my throat. Needless to say, after trying that for awhile it was discontinued.

My goiter was hardly noticeable, so I did nothing. After several more years a new doctor prescribed thyroid pills. I did not feel a need for thyroid and the goiter was unnoticeable, so I was not very faithful about taking the pills. I was careful to use iodized salt.

At age 24 I had been married for four years. We couldn't have a child, and I was declared a sterility case. A gynecologist decided I needed thyroid and put me on 25 micrograms of Cytomel. Within three months I became pregnant. Sterility was a thing of the past for me! I have been taking Cytomel since.

Now I am 39 and have been taking thyroid all this time. Recently I could not sit down without dropping off to sleep. In fact, all I wanted to do was sit down. I have always been extremely energetic, so I thought age was making me slow down.

When I went for my yearly physical I asked for a thyroid test. I had doubled my thyroid to two tablets, 50 micrograms of Cytomel, for three weeks. Even so, the test was borderline.

Since then I have added another Cytomel tablet, so I'm taking 75 micrograms each day. I'm beginning to feel normal again.

I'm puzzled why I need three times as much Cytomel suddenly. Also, one doctor told me that Cytomel was a synthetic thyroid and another told me that it was the real thing. Could you give me some information about this?

DEAR READER — Cytomel is a synthetic preparation, but it has all the same actions as thyroid hormone extracted from animal thyroid glands. A 25-microgram tablet is equivalent to one grain of whole thyroid. One major difference is that Cytomel is not bound to any protein as whole thyroid is.

That characteristic enables it to act much faster. Some noticeable responses can be observed within a few hours after taking it, and within a few days its maximum effect is obtained. It takes two or three weeks for good effects from whole thyroid.

Because the Cytomel is not bound to protein, some of the standard thyroid tests are tricky when you are taking it. The best way to tell when the patient is getting enough is by the response.

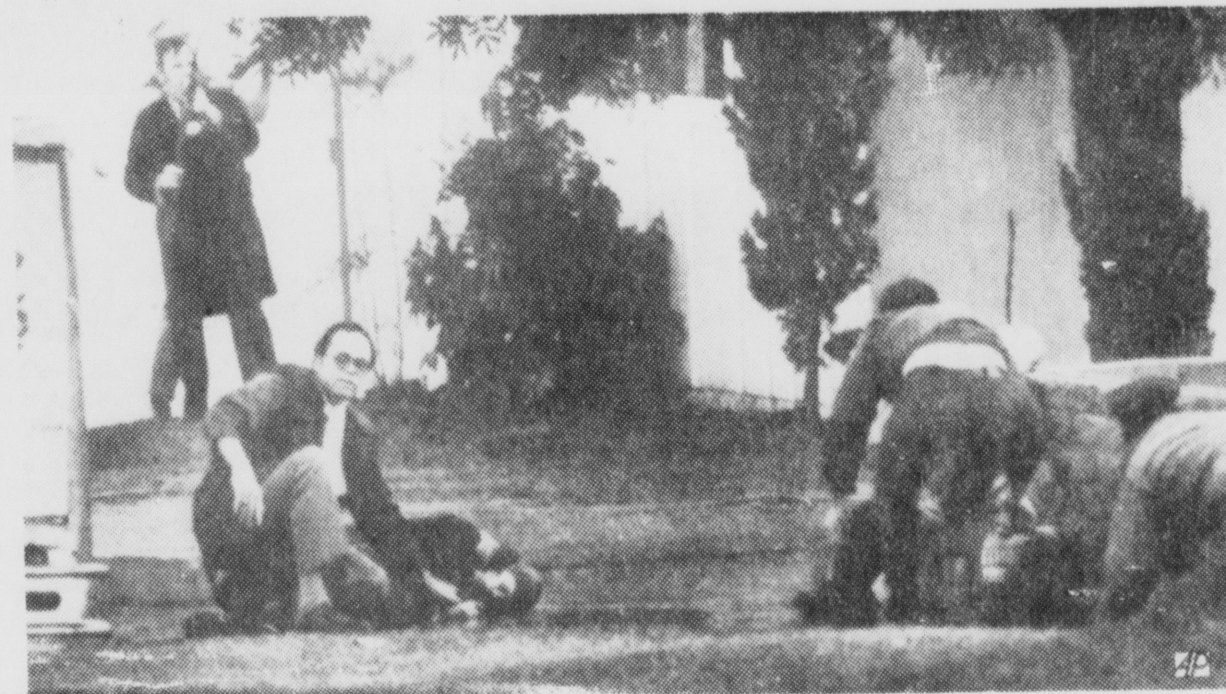

Your low-thyroid problems may not have been as sudden as you think. People can gradually feel worse so slowly they don't notice the change until they are treated and feel better. This is true of many ills.

The thyroid normally puts out more than three grains a day, or equivalent to over 75 micrograms of Cytomel. Even 100 micrograms is needed in some severe cases, so your dosage is not unusual.

Thyroid is often very helpful in sterility problems when one or both partners has even moderately low-thyroid function. It is also commonly used in young girls with a small goiter.

Help for dying boy

An unidentified man, left, summons aid for Leland Phelps, 15, who was fatally wounded at the end of a four-hour siege in which David Torrell, 20, held three youths hostage. A member of a fire department rescue squad creeps toward the wounded boy from the right, as heavily armed officers, in background, prepare to enter the house. Torrell shot himself to death, to end the siege in Oceanside, Calif. (AP Wirephoto)

No tickets in crash

Extensive damage was reported to two autos involved in an accident Monday at the intersection of Timber Creek Rd. and Ill. 26.

Investigating Lee County Sheriff's Deputies said a car driven by Ronald J. Helfrich, 16, 610 W. First St., was crossing Timber Creek when his car struck a northbound auto driven by Ray Price Jr., 51, 911 N. Dement Ave. There were no injuries.

Both drivers claimed neither saw the other car until moments before the collision. Impact sent the Helfrich auto, a 1974 Monte Carlo, into a ditch. Damage to Helfrich's auto was estimated at $2,000 and to Price's 1972 Oldsmobile at $1,700. No tickets were issued.

Festival entertainers

The two couples shown above, Shirley and Paul Katner, left, and Norma and Alan Hoffman, will provide musical entertainment Saturday at 5:30 p.m. as part of the Sauk Valley Festival of Arts and Crafts. Mrs. Katner, a pianist, and Alan Hoffman, playing a recorder, will accompany Mrs. Hoffman, a vocalist, singing songs from "At the Water's Edge" and "West Side Story." Mrs. Katner will also accompany her husband, a bass vocalist, as he sings several musical compositions.

Those getting housing aid may get tax relief

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A plan to give extra cash to senior citizens has been expanded by the Illinois Senate to include those who live in tax-free public housing.

The change was made Tuesday in a proposed senior citizen grant program, which, as introduced, was the same one rejected by Gov. Daniel Walker because it was too expensive.

The bill was re-introduced in the Senate last week, zipped through a public hearing Tuesday morning and is ready to be voted on.

However, Senate Republicans have promised to try to alter the plan to provide higher grants to persons at the lower end of the income scale and further debate on the measure is expected.

The bill, as it stands now, would provide cash grants to persons 65 or older who earn less than $10,000 a year. The grants are intended to refund approximately the amount of money spent in sales taxes on food, clothing, medicine and home heating fuel.

The original bill tied the awarding of grants into an existing property tax relief program. As a result, those who lived in tax-free housing and paid no property taxes did not qualify.

Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago, sponsor of the public housing amendment, said the change would make about 9,150 additional persons, many of them in the Chicago area, eligible for the grants.

The pros and cons of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment were heard again by the Senate Executive Committee Tuesday and forwarded for a floor debate on a 9-to-8 vote.

The Illinois legislature has turned down ratification of the amendment, which bars discrimination on the basis of sex, three times previously.

North Dakota ratified the amendment Monday and became the 34th state to do so. Thirty-eight states must adopt the amendment before it becomes part of the Constitution.

The House called off all sessions this week to permit members to attend funeral services today for Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, Juckett, 42, died Sunday of leukemia.

At the hearing on the tax plan for the elderly, which was held before the entire Senate, Comptroller George W. Lindberg said the state could afford the program if the legislature sets stiff priorities for spending in the next fiscal year.

During a 2 1/2 hour hearing, seven persons testified in favor of ratification and eight testified against it.

DeWitt Gilpin of the United Auto Workers said passage of the ERA would have a positive effect on women and insure "a degree of equality at the hiring gate."

Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, national chairwoman of the Stop-ERA organization, led opposition to the proposed amendment, saying adoption of the ERA "won't do anything good, but it will do a lot of things that are bad."

She said a woman's right to support by her husband, her exemption from the draft and her special job protections were apt to be negated if the ERA were adopted.

As the voting began on the resolution, Sen. William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, the GOP leader who voted against the ERA, asked if it would take a three-fifths vote to ratify the amendment.

But committee chairman Gene Johns, D-Marion, said he was unable to rule on the question. Johns said a majority vote of the committee would be enough to send the resolution to the Senate floor for a vote.

Senate President Cecil Partridge, D-Chicago, has refused to say what his ruling on a majority will be this year. He told committee members he will decide that question when the

Three previous attempts to secure ERA ratification in Illinois have failed. Nine committee Democrats voted in favor of the resolution, six Republicans and two Democrats opposed it, and three members were absent.

Thirty-four states have voted to ratify the proposal, which would prohibit sex discrimination. Thirty-eight states must ratify the proposed amendment before it can become part of the federal Constitution.

The Senate approved the ERA in 1972, but the House failed to follow suit. In 1973 the Senate let a resolution seeking ratification of the ERA die in committee.

Again in 1973, the House and Senate each passed the ERA resolution at another point in 1973 by majority votes, but the leaders of both chambers ruled ratification required a three-fifths vote.

Three previous attempts to secure ERA ratification in Illinois have failed. Nine committee Democrats voted in favor of the resolution, six Republicans and two Democrats opposed it, and three members were absent.

Thirty-four states have voted to ratify the proposal, which would prohibit sex discrimination. Thirty-eight states must ratify the proposed amendment before it can become part of the federal Constitution.

The Senate approved the ERA in 1972, but the House failed to follow suit. In 1973 the Senate let a resolution seeking ratification of the ERA die in committee.

Again in 1973, the House and Senate each passed the ERA resolution at another point in 1973 by majority votes, but the leaders of both chambers ruled ratification required a three-fifths vote.

Senate President Cecil Partridge, D-Chicago, has refused to say what his ruling on a majority will be this year. He told committee members he will decide that question when the persons 65 or older who earn less than $10,000 a year. The grants are intended to refund approximately the amount of money spent in sales taxes on food, clothing, medicine and home heating fuel.

The original bill tied the awarding of grants into an existing property tax relief program. As a result, those who lived in tax-free housing and paid no property taxes did not qualify.

Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago, sponsor of the public housing amendment, said the change would make about 9,150 additional persons, many of them in the Chicago area, eligible for the grants.

The pros and cons of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment were heard again by the Senate Executive Committee Tuesday and forwarded for a floor debate on a 9-to-8 vote.

The Illinois legislature has turned down ratification of the amendment, which bars discrimination on the basis of sex, three times previously.

North Dakota ratified the amendment Monday and became the 34th state to do so. Thirty-eight states must adopt the amendment before it becomes part of the Constitution.

The House called off all sessions this week to permit members to attend funeral services today for Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, Juckett, 42, died Sunday of leukemia.

At the hearing on the tax plan for the elderly, which was held before the entire Senate, Comptroller George W. Lindberg said the state could afford the program if the legislature sets stiff priorities for spending in the next fiscal year.

During a 2 1/2 hour hearing, seven persons testified in favor of ratification and eight testified against it.

DeWitt Gilpin of the United Auto Workers said passage of the ERA would have a positive effect on women and insure "a degree of equality at the hiring gate."

Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, national chairwoman of the Stop-ERA organization, led opposition to the proposed amendment, saying adoption of the ERA "won't do anything good, but it will do a lot of things that are bad."

She said a woman's right to support by her husband, her exemption from the draft and her special job protections were apt to be negated if the ERA were adopted.

As the voting began on the resolution, Sen. William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, the GOP leader who voted against the ERA, asked if it would take a three-fifths vote to ratify the amendment.

But committee chairman Gene Johns, D-Marion, said he was unable to rule on the question. Johns said a majority vote of the committee would be enough to send the resolution to the Senate floor for a vote.

Melodrama to be offered by Blackhawk Players

MT. MORRIS — A modern melodrama will be presented by the Blackhawk Players when they present "Pure As The Driven Snow," on Thursday and Friday at the VFW auditorium.

The supper hour is at 6:30 p.m. and curtain at 8 p.m. Information may be obtained from Bette Landers: 732-6166 or Thelma Cassidy: 734-6197. The play is being directed by Mrs. Thelma Cassidy. It is the 32nd production of the theater group. The cast includes Dave Kitz-miller as Jonathan Logan; Wilma DePuy as Zamah Logan; Kenneth Maxwell as Leander Longfellow; Lavonne Shelly as Purity Dean; Lloyd Blake as Mortimer Frothingham; Myrle Fuller, as Mrs. Hewlitt; Sherry Gregori as Imogene Pickens; Mary Coleman as Nellie Morris; Beth Bentley as Alison Hewlitt; Audrey Oleson as Mrs. Faith Hougue; Joe Terry as E. Z. Pickens; Beatrice Anselm as Lettie Barber; Jack Lynn as Jed Lynn; Sharilyn St. Clair and Colleen Cassidy, card girls.

New fire station opened in Steward

STEWART — Firemen moved trucks and equipment into the new fire station recently.

The 32-foot by 60-foot building, which was started early in the fall, is now completed. In the future, furniture for meetings, cabinets for storage and dryers for drying hoses after fires will be installed in the new station. A driveway, sidewalk, stoops and landscaping at the new station will be finished this spring.

Land for the station was donated by the Lee County Grain Association. A new tanker-pumper has been leased from the Illinois Toll Highway Authority for $1 per year and is being housed in Rochelle.

The two fire trucks in the Steward station include a 1945 International truck which was bought from Rutledge in 1969 and sold to the Ogle-Lee Fire Protection District for $1 by the town of Steward. This truck stays in Steward at all times. The second truck, a 1947 American LaFrance, was purchased from Rochelle and is used in the country.

The first piece of fire fighting equipment was purchased for $155 in 1925. This was a hand-drawn, two-wheel tank.

In 1956 a 17-man volunteer fire department was organized, with Harland Strawbridge as the first fire chief. A 1945 Chevrolet truck was purchased during this same year and has since been sold. In 1968 the 1945 International truck was purchased and recently was brought up to state standards by the district.

Maurice Daum was the fire chief during recent years, before the Ogle-Lee district came into being.

A new siren will also be installed at the station. Previously, a siren on top of the elevator on Main Street had been used for 40 years. The first siren was at the village hall.

Currently, there are 10 alert radios in Steward which are used to notify volunteer firemen of fires.

In February all firemen from volunteer and paid departments will be able to attend a firemanship training program at the Rochelle fire station.

'Illinois History' is topic

A special one-credit course in "Illinois History," starting on Tuesday will be offered at the Sterling YWCA by Sauk Valley College. This class will be taught on eight consecutive Tuesday afternoons, from 1:30 to 3:30, by William Byar, associate professor of history at SVC.

The course has been designed specifically for senior citizens, however, any SVC district resident may enroll. Operating under the college's new Golden Age Tuition Pass, senior citizens (age 60 or over) may enroll in this one credit course for a fee of $1. Others will pay the regular $14 tuition.

Byar said that the course's prime objective is to develop interest in local and state history. A multi-media approach will be employed to trace significant events from the French colonial period through the present time. Historical locations having state and national significance will be examined through video presentations.

Registration can be completed at the first class session. For further information, contact the Office of Community Services, Sauk Valley College (288-5511, ext. 212).

Hobby Happening set for Saturday

The Dixon Park District's Hobby Happening will be opened to the Public from 1:30 to 3 Saturday afternoon at Jefferson School.

Entries include stamp and coin collections, model railroading, kites, a doll collection and even an elephant collection. There are more than 15 entries in this, the first Hobby Happening.

Amboy Council studies mower bids

AMBOY — Bids were received on a lawnmower and the allowance for replacing side-walks was doubled at the meeting of the City Council Tuesday night.

Four bids on a riding lawnmower were studied. Bids were from Dickinson Hardware, Shaw Gamble Store, Leffelman Implements, and Boehle Implements. They ranged from $899 to $1,350 because of various size motors and cutting blades. The bids will be studied by the city property committee to determine the best suited to the needs of the city.

Glen Purdy requested the city allowance of 25 cents per square foot for replacement of sidewalks in front of a property be raised. Council members voted to increase the allowance to 50 cents per square foot. Citizens planning to replace sidewalks will need to contact the city clerk for permission.

The problem of two-hour parking limit for cars in the business district was discussed. A number of businessmen have voiced dissatisfaction with the limit, while others have favored the measure. The problem will be aired again at the next council meeting and individuals will be given the opportunity to speak pro and con on the subject.

Bills were approved for payment in the following amounts: $8,583.08, general fund; $4,029.11 from water operating fund; $808.65, sewer operation; and $31,901.47 to Ladd Construction Co. from motor fuel tax fund.

The meeting was adjourned to 7:30 p.m., Feb. 18, when bids will be opened for a new pickup truck.

Rochelle Hospital

Admitted: Feb. 4 — Miss Cathy Farwell, Ashton; William Larson, DeKalb; Mrs. Marilyn Wilson, Mrs. Sidney Petersen and Mrs. Margaret Ludwig, all of Rochelle.

Discharged: Master James Timmons, Ashton; Master Mark Nevenhoven and Christian Rehm, both of Mt. Morris; Mrs. Gary Horsman and baby girl, Rockford; Miss Sharon Johnson, Robert Lee, Lino Lara, Willie Russell, Mrs. Kathryn Kepner, Mrs. Lawrence Watson and baby boy, Garfield Grothing, and Mrs. Martha Baker, all of Rochelle.

Truck falls parking meter

MT. MORRIS — Mt. Morris police investigated an accident Tuesday involving a 1974 Ford pickup truck.

The truck driven by Fred T. Smith, Forreston, ran over the top of a parking meter located in front of the Mt. Morris Savings and Loan Co.

Damage to the truck was $150.

Smith was arrested for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. He was being held in Ogle County Jail.

West Brooklyn to buy street sweeper

WEST BROOKLYN — Trustee Gerald Hornung was authorized by the West Brooklyn Village Board Tuesday to purchase a used motorized street sweeper from Hopkins Road Equipment Co., Dixon, for $150.

Pat Jones, village clerk, announced that three incumbents, Larry Eddy, Dennis Jones, and Justin Corcoran, have filed for three trustee positions which are to be filled in the April 15 election.

The water committee was authorized by the board to seek bids on 1,200 feet of 6-inch plastic pipe for the water main to be installed on the south side of Wood Street, extending from First to Fourth Street.

The village board is to contact a firm in Milwaukee and the Illinois Meter Co. for bids on a new volume meter on the village water pump.

A contract was awarded to the Hamilton and Blain auditing firm, Dixon, to audit the village books at a minimum of $450 and a maximum of $500.

The village of West Brooklyn is in the process of planning a float to be entered in the Compton Area Centennial Parade on July 13.

Diamond last year was among 16 scholars commissioned by the American Enterprise Institute to participate in a Distinguished Lecture Series and last summer was a regular commentator on national telecasts on public television of the House Judiciary Committee's presidential impeachment hearings.

Selected in 1966 by Time Magazine as one of "ten great teachers" in the nation, Diamond's scholarly writings deal primarily with socialism, federalism and the 1930s. Currently, his research deals with the separation of powers doctrine and the works of President James Madison.

Diamond holds both A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He and his family live in Geneva.

Others from education named by Ford to the ARBAC are F. David Mathews, president of the University of Alabama; Richard Gambino of Queens College in New York; Lyle M. Nelson of Stanford University; and Jacinto J. Quirarte of the University of Texas at San Antonio. Ford also named two students, Betty Shabazz of the University of Massachusetts and Jana E. Sutton of the University of Tennessee.

Max Guinnup to present Woman's Club program

Max Guinnup, associate professor of music at Sauk Valley College, will present a program on "Music and the Fine Arts" at a meeting for the Dixon Woman's Club planned for 2 p.m. Saturday in Loveland Community House.

The program will be illustrated by slides and sound tapes, and Mr. Guinnup will comment on "From the Renaissance," "The Baroque Era," "Age of Elegance," "Age of Revolution," "The Romantic Era," "The Opulent Era" and "The Early 20th Century."

Acting Roles

His familiarity with the stage began at Ball State University when he played the role of Macduff in Shakespeare's "Macbeth." He also was in the cast of "Love Rides the Rail," produced by the River Theater Guild, Sterling, and he played the leading role of Milo in "Lo and Behold," also given by the River Theater Guild.

In 1972, Mr. Guinnup portrayed the character of Henry Albertson in the Sauk Valley College musical, "Fantasticks," and he served as musical director for the Sauk Valley College productions of "Carnival," "Charlie Brown," "Celebration" and "Greenwillow."

He received a master's degree in music education at Columbia University in 1952 and, while he was teaching in Monroe, Mich., he appeared as a soloist and as a member of several outstanding choral groups, including choruses directed by Roger Wagner and Robert Shaw. In 1966, he was presented the "Outstanding contribution to the city of Monroe" award by the Community Players in Monroe, and he was listed in "Who's Who of Outstanding Educators of America" in 1974.

Mr. Guinnup, a resident of Sterling, has been on the Sauk Valley College faculty since 1966.

MAX GUINNUP

The program has been arranged by Mrs. Verne Johnson, chairman of the Woman's Club Music Division, who is assisted by Mrs. R. H. Harridge and Miss Goldie Gigous.

A portion of the program will be given by Steven French, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold French, who was the recipient of the 1974 Dixon Woman's Club scholarship to a Youth Conservation Workshop. He will describe his experiences while attending the camp at Lakeland Junior College near Charleston during the summer of 1974.

Hostesses

Mrs. Sheldon Bross and Miss Alice Thomson, co-chairmen of the afternoon's hostess committee, will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur Blum, Miss Zoia Favoright, Miss Dorothy Dodd, Mrs. Cecil Laughrin, Mrs. Harry Teachout, Mrs. Charles Reuter, Mrs. Clifford Cook, Mrs. Joseph Kenney, Mrs. Clyde Carson, Mrs. Clarence Bothe, Mrs. Joy Atkinson, Mrs. Robert Bollman, Mrs. Paul G. Watters, Mrs. Areta Gracey, Mrs. Harold Hughes, Mrs. Pius Burgard and Miss Janell Laughrin.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Your credibility is on the line. Baby. Better come up with a good answer to this one—or else.

Your response to T. L. S. was, "Relax—no letters are kept on file in this office. We destroy every letter the moment it has been answered."

How then are you able to re-run a letter, word for word, months later, if the original letter is challenged? I also refuse to believe that "every letter written to Ann Landers is seen only by me or one of my competent, close-mouthed secretaries." Why then must we send our letters to our local newspaper where, I've been told, they are screened and a very small number sent to you?

It seems to me that anyone stupid enough to sign his right name to a damaging confession should be informed that the news media in that person's home town has first crack at it. If I'm wrong, give me one good reason for this roundabout mailing approach to your desk.

Dear N. S. D.: First, I can produce old letters verbatim months after they've appeared because I keep scrapbooks which contain every column I've ever written.

As for the roundabout mailing approach, it's a pain in the neck to me, and not many papers do it. You happen to be reading me in one that does. Ninety per cent of the papers publish a P.O. Box number.

It is NOT true that your local newspaper office opens and screens the letters and sends only a selected few to me. If you have any evidence to the contrary let me know immediately and I'll see that a stop is put to it.

A few papers ask readers to send their letters to the local office so they can gauge the mail pull and evaluate my readership. They are NOT interested in nosing around. The letters are forwarded, unopened.

The following is a rerun, which I could have found in my scrapbook had the reader described it or given me the date. In this instance, however, the reader sent the column, yellowed with age, and wrote:

Dear Ann: The best column

you ever wrote has been in my wallet for several years. It is barely readable, but I'm sure you can make it out. Please run it again so I can carry it around for another decade. — Your Friend

Dear Friend: With pleasure. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: You get many letters from people who are lonely. They wonder why. Yesterday, a person I work with complained that no one likes her. I sat down and listed the personality and character traits I dislike most. Strangely enough, out of the ten traits, this person has seven. Please print the list. It might help some people see themselves as others see them.

1. A compulsion to show off knowledge.
2. Exaggerates to the point that it's the next thing to lying.
3. Moodiness. Friendly one day, unfriendly the next.
4. Bossiness. Must run everything.
5. Not reliable. Word is no good.
6. Chronic complainer. Inveterate crepe-hanger.
7. Nosy. Asks questions that are none of her business.
8. Gossipy. Knows everything about everybody. Makes you wonder what she is saying about you.
9. Says things in anger, then tries to smooth things over by buying a gift.
10. Always fishing for compliments but never gives any.

Isolate that ailing plant

By JANET TARA

Plants sometimes just die. This is not easy to accept, but it happens. Most of the time, though, there is a direct cause of their expiration. Overwatering, too little light, diseases, too little water, cold, etc. are all good reasons.

The minute you suspect a plant is "sick" immediately put it in isolation to insure the continued health of other plants, particularly if the sick plant has bugs. Bugs are hard to get rid of, but it can be done.

Make sure you diagnose the disease properly to avoid the wrong treatment. If you can't determine it from books and observation, check your nursery. Follow all the necessary steps for revitalization. Most important, don't start treating the plant as if it were already dead. That is, water it, wash the leaves, make sure the light is right. All these things become more important when the plant is ailing.

Treatments may have to be repeated if the first curing attempts are unsuccessful. When dealing with insecticides and fungicides use several small doses rather than one massive dose. These poisons can kill the plant as well as the disease.

'Winter greens' with a big difference

By AILEEN CLAIRE

A favorite winter vegetable since Colonial days is still with us. This is kale, also called "winter greens." Many in all parts of the United States have grown up eating kale cooked simply in water with salt added and served with vinegar. Going a step further is an Herbed Savory kale in which a touch of garlic, marjoram and sugar heighten the flavor.

HERBED SAVORY KALE

- 2 1/2 pound fresh kale
- 1 clove garlic, cut in half
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf marjoram
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Wash kale well. Cut off coarse stems and discard them. Place kale, garlic, salt, marjoram, pepper, sugar and 1 tablespoon of the vinegar in a large saucepan. Cover and cook 20 to 25 minutes or until just tender. Add remaining vinegar and butter. Heat only about 1/2 minute. Serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

sided in Pine Rock Township, Ogle County, since their wedding.

Co-hostesses for the open house will be the honorees' three daughters, Evelyn and Mrs. W. F. (Wilma) Hilker, both of Rockford, and Mrs. Loren (Norma) Drew, Olathe, Kan. The Grovers request that gifts be omitted.

A little deception might do it

By Oswald & James Jacoby

As anyone who looks at all 52 cards can see, South is going to wind up one trick short at his four-heart contract. West can take his ace of trumps and lead a second spade to give his partner a ruff after which start it will be a cinch for East to take his two aces.

Can South do anything about it? Not if the defense doesn't falter, but South can try to deceive his opponents. As a starter, which high spade should he use at trick one? Clearly the queen is not the right one to play. The average false-carder wins with the ace. That also is wrong. West is very likely to lead a second spade. South's best bet is to win with the king. That play will show the ace but not the queen and might encourage a shift.

So South should play the king of spades at trick one and lead a trump. Clearly not the king. The king play will get the ace to come right up. How about the 10 or even the six? Too apparent an attempt at deception. West will know that South holds higher trumps.

So we find the right one to lead is the queen. West may think that South holds six trumps to the queen-jack-10 and is trying to bump the ace and king together. For this reason West may duck.

Not too likely against alert opponents, but the best try he can make.

Day care can be baby's nightmare

(Note: Today's column is written by Lew.)
(Second of two related columns)

The mother-child relationship is like democracy—it's not perfect but all the other alternatives are so much worse. Despite a growing amount of evidence which points out that physically, psychologically and even politically, institutionalized infant group day-care centers are more harmful than helpful to children—some social planners, militant feminists and politicians are advocating such centers all over the nation.

As one of the few legitimate child advocates on the scene today, Fred Rogers of Mister Rogers' Neighborhood is raising his voice to point out the dangers.

Rogers points out that after World War II several eastern European nations implemented massive day care in order to free mothers from child-rearing responsibilities. Those postwar day care centers are now being de-emphasized because studies have revealed that an incredibly high number of children who were raised in such centers have grown up to be social casualties.

The potential for permanent physical damage to the infant during the first three months of life has been documented by Dr. Humberto Nagera, professor of Psychiatry and Director of the Child Analytic Study Program at the University of Michigan.

But Dr. Nagera has also amassed a wealth of evidence that institutionalized infant day care centers can and do produce tremendous emotional damage to the child as well.

The fact is that day care centers are totally incapable of satisfying the child's greatest psychological need—the need for consistency of care.

A mother tends to her child in a special, unique way and the child soon learns to adjust to the rhythms and patterns of that care. That is consistency.

In a day-care setting, two, three, possibly even four adults, each in her own manner, may tend (or not tend) to the infant's needs.

The infant, separated from its mother, is placed among howling babies, pushing, yelling toddlers, roaring aggressive children, ripping toys away from the more timid ones. Five minutes of a scene like this is like five years for the child who is frantically searching for the warmth and comfort of his own mother.

The final result is that the child, especially as it is building its fragile ego, suddenly has its nurturing supports ripped away and replaced by a series of confusing signals. The result is anxiety and even terror.

Bluntly, Dr. Nagera sums it up this way: "...no other animal species will subject their infants to experiences they are not endowed to cope with, except the human animal."

French actress interrupts boss' 'dull' speech

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Being regarded as "the most beautiful woman in the world" allows a degree of independence.

Hence, Catherine Deneuve felt no concern about upstaging her boss in front of the television camera and Hollywood society.

It happened last week at the Golden Globe awards.

The French actress gave the prize for best dramatic film to "Chinatown," and it was accepted by Paramount production boss, Robert Evans.

Miss Deneuve, who is working for Evans in "Hustle" with Burt Reynolds, didn't allow the usual thank-everybody speech.

She kept interrupting Evans until finally the show went off the air.

"I understand that Bob Evans is very angry with me," said Miss Deneuve afterwards. "I don't care. His speech was so dull I thought I had to do something."

She has a history of upsetting traditional institutions. Like marriage. She has a son, 11, by French director Roger Vadim and a daughter, 2, by Italian star Marcello Mastroianni, but has only been married once — to British photographer David Bailey.

"Marriage," she says, "is a dying institution. Some day it will disappear. It is so foolish. After you get married you can get a divorce. So why get married?"

It is difficult to challenge her Gallic logic, especially when it emerges from that face. It is beautiful, she admits, but not always.

"Like everyone else, I have my good days and my bad days," she remarked.

"When I am feeling sad, it shows in the face. Sometimes I can be a trouper and overcome it. Not always. If you think that I only take good photographs, you should see all the ones that I have killed on this picture."

One gets the impression there are brains behind all that beauty. Her film career has been well planned; she has worked with directors who developed her skills as an actress — Roger Vadim ("Vice and Virtue"), Jacques Demy ("The Umbrellas of Cherbourg"), Roman Polanski ("Repulsion"), Luis Bunuel ("Belle de Jour").

Even her appearance in a television commercial was calculated.

"It was not something I would ordinarily do," said Miss

Deneuve, 31. "But Richard Avedon was very persuasive."

"It was for a product (Chanel perfume) I believed in, and he argued that the commercial would make me known to the American public. I had appeared in only one American film ('The April Fools' with Jack Lemmon) and it was not the kind of role to make me famous here."

"Avedon photographed the commercial in very good taste, and it gave me more recognition in the United States than all of the films I made in Europe."

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1975. There are 329 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1917, Mexico became a federated Republic of 28 states.

In this date — In 1782, the Spanish captured the Mediterranean island of Minorca from the British.

In 1783, Sweden recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1790, the first lawyers were admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1818, the United States signed treaties of friendship with Denmark and Portugal.

In 1937, a bitter controversy began when President Franklin D. Roosevelt proposed adding six new justices to the Supreme Court.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 14 as tronauts landed on the moon.

Ten years ago: A special White House envoy, McGeorge Bundy, arrived in Saigon to try to help form a stable South Vietnamese government to wage effective war against Communist guerrillas.

Five years ago: American fighter-bombers attacked enemy missile and gun positions in North Vietnam, knocking out two.

One year ago: President Nixon ordered a month-long freeze on diesel fuel prices in the hope of ending a strike by independent truckers.

Today's birthdays: New York Times publisher Arthur Sulzberger is 49. Baseball star Hank Aaron is 41.

Thought for today: Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, and half-shut afterwards.

— Benjamin Franklin, 1706-1790.

EYES CLOSED and hair flying, Walnut's Dennis Eckberg pulls down an offensive rebound despite the presence of Ohio's Jim Brandau (left) and Tom Yucus Tuesday night at Ohio. Eckberg grabbed eight boards and dumped in 10 points to help the Blue Raiders to an eight-point win. (Telegraph Photo)

Balanced scoring allows Walnut to whip Ohio in Bureau Valley game

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor

OHIO—The Walnut Blue Raiders placed all five starters in double figures to defeat the Ohio Bulldogs 67-59, here, Tuesday night in a foul-marred Bureau Valley basketball game. Ohio had four players exit via fouls while three Blue Raiders got an early rest because of a quintet of personals.

A total of 52 fouls were called in the game with 20 in the final quarter. Walnut capitalized on its charity efforts to sink 25 in 37 tosses while the Bulldogs swished 18 of 25. Walnut missed the first attempt of a bonus situation six times, all but once in the last stanza.

"Not Enough Moving"

"We just did a little too much reaching and not enough moving," Dave McFadden, Walnut varsity coach, stated after the win. "We got some silly fouls early and then we let down defensively. It was a typical Ohio-Walnut game with both teams aggressive on the boards and everybody was after one another."

"Eckberg (Dennis) and Ganschow (Dick) both had four fouls with five minutes to go but, luckily, they were able to hang on till later," Ganschow was one of the trio of Blue Raiders to foul out while Eckberg finished out the contest with his quartet.

Dave Mead, Ohio varsity coach, said, "I expected a rough game tonight because we have been going to the boards harder lately and we know Walnut always goes to the boards well. We just had some stupid fouls with guys hacking after a Walnut player had the rebound off the board."

Mead Comments

"I thought we played a good ball club," added Mead. "Our defense wasn't the same as the game in the (Amboy) holiday tournament when we only had one guy hustling on defense at a time. Tonight, we had four and sometimes five guys hustling. We just made mistakes and a good club beat us."

It was the third consecutive triumph by the Blue Raiders over the Bulldogs this season and improved the Walnut Bureau Valley ledger to 4-2 and the season record to 12-9. Ohio is now 3-1 and 11-7, respectively.

All five starters dropped in at least two points each for the Blue Raiders in the first quarter as Walnut outscored Ohio 18-17. Ganschow had six on an offensive rebound, a 20-footer from the left corner and a lay-up with an assist to Joe Gibson.

9-of-14 Shooting

Gary Carter and Mike Munger added four apiece while Eckberg and Gibson netted two apiece as the Blue Raiders connected on 9 of 14 field-goal attempts. Al Dremann sparked the Bulldogs with a pair of three-point plays in a total of 10 points. Jim Brandau added four on two baskets.

Neither team could manage more than a two-point lead in the second quarter with five deadlocks thrown in. Carter potted six free throws in as many chances while Eckberg was three for four. Gibson bombed in a bucket from the key and Ganschow dropped in a 10-foot jumper (assist to Gibson) for the only Walnut baskets of the eight minutes.

Ohio had buckets from four different players plus five free throws to trail 31-30 at intermission. The biggest crash of the quarter occurred when Ohio's Tom Yucus wiped out a cymbal (part of the band's musical instruments) while trying to prevent a bad pass from going out of bounds.

Ganschow Gets Five

Ganschow and Munger zeroed in five points each while Carter managed four as the Blue Raiders had a 16-12 margin in the third quarter. Ganschow had a charity toss, a lay-up assisted by Munger and a close-range basket over the defensive efforts of Dave Piper.

Munger stole a pass for a lay-up and then put in an offensive rebound of one of his own misses to begin a three-point package midway through the frame. Jim Ryan put in his first three shots of the quarter to lead Ohio with six points.

After Gibson canned a pair of field goals and Eckberg got one from underneath to offset a pair by Dremann to start the fourth quarter, Walnut hit five free throws to extend its lead to 58-46. Gibson had three of the charity tosses and Eckberg the other two.

Never Get Closer

The Bulldogs could never get closer than seven after that. Seven players fouled out in the final quarter, with 21 free throws being poured through the nets. Duane Blaine was five for six, for Ohio. After converting five of their first six chances, the Blue Raiders capitalized on only seven efforts in fifteen the rest of the stanza.

"Our free-throw shooting just deserted us at the end," McFadden explained. "I felt we had the game under control when we had 41-36 lead if we kept putting in the effort. We played a decent man-to-man tonight even though we might have had some trouble with our match-ups."

"We have four starters averaging double figures and we had five tonight, so at least we're consistent. We did a good job on the boards because we went to the boards well. We were patient early in our offense and, overall, we handled our offense well but the defense was not too efficient."

Rebounding Statistics

Carter pulled down three offensive and seven defensive boards to lead the Blue Raiders with 10. Ganschow had four at each end to finish with eight, while Eckberg also had eight with six on defense. Walnut had 34-31 advantage on the rebounding charts.

The Blue Raiders committed 17 turnovers to 14 for Ohio. Walnut was 21 of 47 from the field for 45 per cent, compared to 18 of 60 for 30 per cent by the Bulldogs. Brandau had four offensive and a half-dozen defensive grabs to pace Ohio. Dremann got nine and Piper eight.

Dremann also had six recoveries. Blaine had four assists while Ryan and Brandau chipped in with three each. Dremann led all scorers with his 17 points based on six baskets and five charity tosses. Blaine added 11 markers while Ryan and Brandau got 10 apiece.

Gibson had five field goals and the same number of free throws to lead Walnut with 15 points. Carter had one less while Munger and Ganschow managed 13. Eckberg ended with 10. Walnut now hosts Dunlap in a Blackhawk Conference game on Friday, while Ohio goes to La Moille for a contest which will be counted both in the Little Eight and Bureau Valley standings.

In the sophomore contest, Walnut captured a 45-44 victory with Ohio rallying from a 10-point deficit in the final quarter to make it close.

Who is No. 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone knows who's No. 1 in the college basketball poll. It's unbeaten, untied and unafraid Indiana.

But who's No. 2? Seems like everytime someone sneaks into the second position they promptly get whipped and fall back.

Take North Carolina State, for example, which is just what Maryland did. No sooner did the Wolfpack move back into the No. 2 position than they dropped a one-point decision to the Terrapins.

This week's poll finds UCLA in the No. 2 spot, replacing North Carolina State which tumbled all the way to sixth. The Bruins, 15-2, collected 838 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters on the strength of a victory over arch-rival Southern California. They were fourth last week.

Indiana, 20-0 through last week, was a unanimous choice for the top spot. The Hoosiers polled all 50 first-place votes for a neat 1,000 points after beating Illinois and Ohio State.

Louisville, 15-1, remained in the No. 3 position after beating New Mexico State and North Texas State. The Cardinals picked up 800 points.

Maryland, up from eighth following its victory over N.C. State, was fourth with a 14-3 record and 651 points. Kentucky, 15-2, held the No. 5 spot. The Wildcats collected 623 points after trimming Vanderbilt and Mississippi State.

North Carolina State, 13-3, headed up the second five. Alabama, 15-2, was up two spots to seventh. Southern California, 13-3, dropped two places to eighth. Oregon, 15-2, jumped from 11th to ninth. And Arizona State, 17-2, advanced from 12th to 10th.

Marquette, 13-3, was 11th, followed by North Carolina, 11-5; La Salle, 16-3; Notre Dame, 11-6; Tennessee, 13-3; Clemson, 11-7; Arizona, 14-4; Creighton, 15-4; Rutgers, 14-4; and Penn, 14-4.

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Bobby Knoop, a former All-Star second baseman with the California Angels, will manage the Quad-Cities Angels of the Midwest League this season, the club announced Tuesday.

Knoop, 36, is a native of the Sioux City and played eight years in the major leagues, including six with the Angels. He was an American League All-Star in 1966.

He also played with the Chicago White Sox and Kansas City, retiring after the 1971 season and has been in the insurance business in California the last three years.

He replaces Jim Williams as the Quad-Cities manager. Williams will manage the Angels' AA affiliate at El Paso, Texas. Knoop will be making his managerial debut.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs signed today four more players for 1975, including veteran outfielder Jose Cardenal and first-line pitcher Bill Bonham.

Also signed were relief pitcher Bob Locker, reacquired last fall from the Oakland A's, and infielder Billy Garbarkewitz. The Cubs now have 26 of their 38 rostered players under contract.

Cardenal hit .293 last season when he led the club in hits with 159, doubles with 35 and stolen bases with 23. Bonham started 36 games in 1974 and posted an 11-22 record with a 3.85 ERA.

Locker, who had a 10-3 Cub record and a club record high of 18 saves in 1973, did not pitch for the A's last season undergoing elbow surgery June 6. He returned to the Cubs in a deal for outfielder Billy Williams which also brought the A's reliever Darold Knowles and infielder Manny Trillo to Chicago.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Melton and Ken Henderson, two power hitters for the Chicago White Sox, have signed 1975 contracts, officials announced today.

Henderson, a 28-year-old centerfielder, recently was named as the Chicago Baseball Player of the Year by the Chicago Baseball Writers Association. Henderson enjoyed one of his best years in major league baseball in 1974 as he collected career highs of 20 home runs, 95 runs batted in and 176 hits.

Henderson's 281 total bases ranked second in the American League behind Joe Rudi of Oakland. His record of 35 doubles and RBI total was fourth in the league. Henderson also had a .987 fielding average with 462 putouts in 475 attempts.

He batted .292 for the season, his highest since 1970, when he hit .294 for the San Francisco Giants. Henderson joined the White Sox in 1973 after playing seven seasons with the Giants.

Melton, a 29-year-old third baseman, slugged 21 home runs last year, the fifth time in his six-year career that he has surpassed 20.

In 1970 and 1971, Melton smacked 33 home runs and led the American League in the latter campaign, the first White Sox to win the title. Melton batted .242 last year.

Fifteen of the 34 players have signed for the 1975 season, officials said.

How to deduct medical expense

Taxpayers who itemize their deductions must consider minimum limits in deducting medical and dental expenses on their federal income tax returns, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

Deduction is allowed for expenses actually paid during the taxable year covering medical care of the taxpayer, his wife or dependent, to the extent such expenses are not compensated for by insurance or through other means. The deduction is limited, however, to that portion of the expenses which exceed three per cent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. There is also a 1 per cent limitation on drugs and medicines.

On a joint return, the three per cent is based on the total adjusted gross income of both the husband and wife.

The three per cent limitation, however, does not apply to one-half (up to $150 per year) of the amount paid for qualified deductible medical care insurance. Any amount over this limitation paid for such insurance is lumped together with other medical expenses and deducted, subject to the three per cent rule.

Qualified medical insurance premiums include amounts paid for:

- (1) Policies that provide reimbursement for hospitalization, surgical fees, and other medical expenses;
- (2) Policies that provide only for the reimbursement of the cost of prescription drugs;
- (3) The medical care portion in policies providing for more than one type of reimbursement if the medical charge is reasonable and is stated separately in the insurance contract or is furnished to the taxpayer in a separate statement;
- (4) Membership in an association furnishing cooperative, or so-called "free choice" medical service, or group hospitalization and clinical care;

(5) Supplementary medical care insurance under Medicare (but not the employee tax for hospital insurance); and

(6) Medical care insurance premiums paid by the taxpayer for himself, his spouse, or a dependent, before he reaches 65, which cover medical care after he reaches 65. These premiums are deductible when paid if they are payable on a level payment basis for 10 years or more, or until the year in which the taxpayer reaches 65 (but in no case for less than five years).

Medical expenses include amount paid for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease or for the purpose of affecting any structure or function of the body, including amounts paid for health insurance, dental work, eyeglasses, artificial limbs, hearing aids, transportation primarily for and essential to medical care, and the like.

Medicines and drugs are included only to the extent they exceed one per cent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. Funeral expenses are not medical expenses.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE C-669: Doris D., aged 38, is tearful.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "we have been happily married for 15 years and have four wonderful children.

"But now I have learned that my husband is chasing around with a college coed in our town who is only 20 years old.

"He doesn't know that I have found out about his affair, so should I face him with the facts and threaten to divorce him?"

"And why should he desert me, for I am an excellent cook, keep the house spotless, and he admits I am a superb mother to our children?"

Logic vs. Emotion

Sexual magnetism and erotic infatuation are not based on such logic as required in a geometry textbook!

Nor can a husband's wedding promise to "love, honor and cherish" his wife, justify her "coasting" on the belief that she has permanent "tenure" of his ardent affection.

For love is an emotion, like fear, anger and grief.

The Worry Clinic

And emotions cannot be successfully promised for future years but must be aroused or resurrected by the conditions present at that future time.

When Doris was a slender, adoring bride, she weighed 115. Now she waddles around at 155, which is 40 pounds extra.

So Doris is no longer the same romantic stimulus to his passion that she was 15 years ago.

Oh, her husband will freely admit she is a fine cook, housekeeper and mother.

But such logical admissions don't arouse his erotic nerve.

His coed paramour, however, weighs only 110, laughs at his attempts at humor, and regards him as a thrilling, somewhat mysterious person.

Doris, however, is "on to him," so he can't feel as much like that dashing big shot for she knew him way back when!

In such cases, don't accuse your husband or threaten immediate divorce and otherwise belittle him as a "heel" for deserting you faithful wives!

Such nagging merely will deflate his ego, so he will naturally turn to the other girl more readily.

For she makes him feel MORE important; not less so!

Therefore, I urged Doris to fight fire with fire, since the odds favor the usual wife if she will act accordingly.

"Go on my dehydration diet," I warned her, "and lose at least 20 pounds between now and Easter."

"Meanwhile, build up his ego by verbal compliments and happy smiles when he gets home from the office."

"Successful wives learn to be a good actress and often feign happiness though their heart may be breaking."

"And show more enthusiasm in the boudoir, for the outside paramour knows she must be far more cooperative in order to win your mate."

"For the siren vividly realizes she has a rival in you, so she is always indulging in erotic salesmanship."

Doris agreed, so she started the diet outlined fully in the booklet below.

It is not difficult to follow, for you shrink your stomach the first three days via the low liquid intake.

Then you will feel comfortable on 800 calories per day for the first 10 days and be down 10 pounds.

So send for the diet booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The tugboat life

Next to the enormous ore carriers and cargo ships plying Superior-Duluth bay on Lake Superior, the tiny tugboats pulling and pushing these behemoths in and out of port look like toys in a bathtub. But without them, the mighty vessels would never be able to dock in the busy port. In 1973 alone, the tugboat fleet moved a total of 46,861,063 tons in the bay. Below, the tugboat New Jersey nudges a grain carrier, Destination France, from the dock. Top left, Capt. Bob Male carefully surveys the distance from a tanker to be piloted and consults his radioman. At right, Marley keeps a steady eye on the carrier from his post in the pilot house. Below left, the engineer opens the fuel lines as the tugboat starts its haul. The 60,000-ton carrier safely out to sea, the tugboat crew relaxes (below right) around a pot of coffee.

ARTS FESTIVAL—Helen May, Dover, shown with her handmade Cathedral quilt, will be participating at the Sauk Valley College Arts Festival Feb. 7-9. The show features all types of arts and craft displays.

BACK TO THE ALTAR, actress Zsa Zsa Gabor, whose age is estimated to be in the mid-50s, has married again—this time to the millionaire next door. In a civil ceremony in Las Vegas, she wed her former neighbor, Jack Ryan, 46, who made his fortune as inventor of the Barbi doll.

PBS offers close-up of Arab and Israeli life

NEW YORK (AP)—Reports of Middle East fighting and tension are so frequent they seem the rule, not the exception. But if you'd like the hopeful side of this long, sad story, watch "Arabs and Israelis" tonight.

The show is the first installment in an eight-part public TV series primarily consisting of interviews with Arab and Israeli families and individuals directly affected by Middle East conflicts of the past 26 years.

The series, produced at a cost of $500,000 by station WGBH in Boston, represents progress of a kind just in its filming.

Its Israeli reports were produced by Zvi Dor-Ner, an Israeli television documentarian. The Arab reports were produced by Mohammed Salmawy, a Cairo newspaperman aided by Peter Cook, a WGBH producer.

According to WGBH, Dor-Ner and Salmawy, after filming their respective segments, met on the neutral turf of Geneva, Switzerland, to collaborate in putting together the segments for "Arabs and Israelis."

As Peter S. McGhee, executive producer of the series, points out at the start of the show, the series seeks out "the softer voices" of the Middle East, not the headline-grabbing cries of extremists.

Tonight's half-hour program hears from two middle-class families whose sons—an Israeli tank commander and an Egyptian Mig-21 fighter pilot—were killed in the Yom Kippur war of October 1973.

Most of the talk is of peace and co-existence, the speakers' thoughts put into sharp focus as they recall the deaths of the two men in a war only a few of those interviewed seemed to say was justified.

And those few speak in vague, general terms. The mother of the pilot says her son fought "for his land, to return our land, to be free."

The dead tanker's uncle, standing near the cemetery in which the soldier is buried, says, "Now that we have these graves, how will we every leave this place?"

Only one person—a fiery teen-aged cousin of the Egyptian flier—seems to think military might causes respect.

He's quickly overruled by a friend of the pilot, an army veteran of the Yom Kippur war. "If you have a gun," the veteran sighs, "you can't have peace."

Next week's program shows not only the human cost of the 1973 fighting in the Sinai Desert, but also the area's political and strategic meaning as expressed by an Israeli general and an Egyptian admiral.

Information about other shows is sketchy. WGBH says the two producers still are working on them.

MARY GUZZO, lyric-coloratura soprano from Rockford, will sing three operatic arias and a medley of show tunes beginning at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Sauk Valley Arts Fair to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Sauk Valley College. Miss Guzzo studied at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago and debuted in Vienna and sang as lead soprano of the Darmstadt Opera Co. in Germany. She has been a member of the faculty of Clifford P. Carlson School in Rockford for 4½ years.

Artifacts found along pipeline

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
IN THE ATIGUN CANYON ABOVE THE ARCTIC CIRCLE, Alaska (AP) — The slate-blue arrowhead looked out of place lying on top of the ground in the middle of nowhere.

Somehow it would have seemed more appropriate to stare at it on a piece of black velvet, inside a glass case, beside a neatly printed card telling of a long-ago people who made it and used it and left it behind.

But there it was, freshly dug from the ground of Alaska's North Slope above the Arctic Circle. For the first time in 10,000 years, the carefully chiseled piece of stone was being held by human hands.

The Eskimo arrowhead discovered that afternoon in late summer is one of more than 20,000 "finds" unearthed by students and professional archaeologists at several sites along the nearly 800-mile route of the trans-Alaska pipeline during the past several years.

Armed with trowels, brushes, wire screens, bug repellent, heavy face netting, camping equipment, cameras, survey instruments and patience, between 30 and 40 men and women spent the summer participating in digs under the sponsorship of two Alaska universities.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of oil companies responsible for the design, construction and operation of the pipeline, has awarded contracts to the University of Alaska at Fairbanks and the Alaska Methodist University in Anchorage to uncover artifacts along the right-of-way, paying the diggers an average of $40 per day, and providing food, housing and transportation.

The universities are also conducting orientation seminars at the pipeline camps to acquaint construction workers with the importance of the archeology project.

Seven professional archeologists direct the undergraduate and graduate students, four of whom have earned their masters' degree and one a doctorate on the basis of an earlier archeological survey conducted in 1970 and 1971 along the route.

Commenting on that earlier study, the Arctic Institute of North America said the digs have "shed new light on the long-standing problems concerning the origin and distribution of Alaskan Eskimos and Indians."

One of the supervisors, Mike Kunz, 29, of Fairbanks, has participated in about 30 excavations along the pipeline route.

"We haven't come up with anything really startling, but the things we have uncovered have added more pieces to the puzzle of what happened up here in the past," said Kunz, a deeply-tanned young man with a golden beard and weather-etched face. "Before the pipeline project, no one had ever worked in this area before."

Small plants make tools for export

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Have you ever wondered where icepicks and "glacier skis" are being made? Certainly not on the assembly lines of the big plants in Western Europe and the United States.

They are made in such places as the tiny villages of the Stubai Valley in the Tyrol, where the descendants of the village smiths knew they would never be able to compete with the industrial giants.

But they also knew they could make icepicks, precision tools and "glacier skis," things with which the big factories would not bother.

"Glacier skis" are made of aluminum and measure only about one third of a normal ski. They are used by mountain climbers to traverse glaciers or snowfields during their summertime mountain tours. The "glacier skis" weigh little and can easily be taken along on tours.

The Stubai Valley industry is well-placed to make them, situated on the foot of the eternal-snow Stubai glacier which was opened up to tourism on a large scale earlier this year by a new system of cablecars.

Before construction of the cable cars — in fact, a system of closed gondolas each holding six persons — it took nine hours to climb up to the Dresner mountain hut halfway up the 11,000-foot-high Wildspitze, Tyrol's tallest mountain. The cablecar makes it to the 9,842-foot-high Eisgrat at the foot of the Wildspitze in about 20 minutes.

Some 75 years ago, the 30 village smiths of the Stubai Valley decided to join forces. Now the industrial collaboration started by them has grown to 50 small plants with 500 workers, producing some 4,500 tools used in industry, home, garden and tourism. Exports go to 52 countries of the world.

"Beef Anyone"

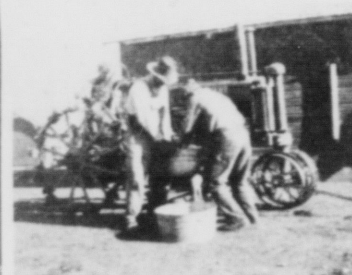

Winter time was beef butchering time. Why? Just as simple as can be. There were no fancy deep freezers in 1930's but everyone still enjoyed good fresh beef. In the winter time we could keep that beef on the screened in front porch where I guess the temperature never got above the point where we had a meat thaw problem.

Dakota in those days was not an area of farming that produced too many prime "corn-fed" beef animals. But the one or two animals that were to be used for the family were carefully picked and pampered. They got the best of the roughage and all the ground corn and grain that they wanted. Somewhat like Hansel and Gretel — watching the prize animal fatten until it was ready for the table.

"Butchering" day was a day when the neighbors gathered to give a helping hand. When Joe butchered then George helped. When George butchered Joe helped. Because necessity is the master of invention a good farmer was always able to improvise. At our place that meant performing the task out-of-doors regardless of the weather because the carcass could be elevated to a working height by suspending it from the hay barn ropes. These were the ropes used to hook to the slings that carried the hay up into the hay barn.

It may have been a bit chilly but to our good fortune at home the big hay barn door was on the south side of the barn.

I remember the meat cutting sessions on the table in the kitchen. The folks had a chart on "How to Cut Up Beef". They consulted this most carefully and really things didn't turn out too badly.

Like any good beef there was always a demand for plenty of hamburger and the picture here shows the ingenious way in which dad saved hard manual labor for the grinding of the meats. This was running the meat grinder from the belt of the old John Deere tractor. With one man on the clutch — one man holding the basket of meat strips & scraps and one man feeding it in the meat grinder, the job was accomplished.

Because there was a hazard involved in stuffing meat into a revolving auger type of feeder we had a wooden handle made to stuff the meat more deeply into the small grinder hopper which forced it through the knives and then thru the perforated plates that determined the coarseness or fineness of the finished product. It was a standing rule that no meat was to be stuffed down that hopper by bare hand.

I guess it's a funny thing I am even here to try and recall the "good old days" because I had just about finished the job when a small last piece was caught in the hopper. I pushed it down — without the wooden paddle. The next thing I knew one inch of my finger was ground "beef" — the entire machine was out of alignment as I jerked back — and I'm easily identifiable today by the length of the long finger on my right hand.

As the American Bicentennial year approaches much in the Early American will be used and stressed in interior decorating. To keep abreast of the time we at Wermers Floors have available for your selection a fine choice of Axminster carpets and printed carpet patterns that will fit most perfectly into the 1976 theme. So take an old fashioned way of doing business and add the modern way of making the installations and you have a beautiful floor. Come on over to 313 West First Street and use our decorating service — see our huge display and pick out the carpet — linoleum or tile of your choice. We'll be glad to see you.

EDITORS NOTE: Associated Press writer Richard Pieniak has previously reported on what gasoline rationing is like by rationing himself and how family budgeting works by strictly adhering to a low income budget for a month. The following is an account of how Pieniak and his wife Cheryl fared after The Associated Press asked Pieniak to try still another experiment: living without electricity.

By RICHARD T. PIENIAK
Associated Press Writer
NUTLEY, N.J. (AP) — It cost us four times as much to live without electricity as with it.

"After trying to save a little money by living without electricity, we gave up after two days — it was too expensive.

The cost of candles and ice (to keep milk, butter and soda cool) came to $6 for the test period. The savings on the electricity bill was no more than $1.50.

But the project was a welcome change. We had the pleasure of reviving a difficult but delicate custom: using the bathroom by candlelight.

Another challenge was checking on dinner with the help of candlelight. One night the menu was pork chops. It was very tough to tell if the meat was cooked. So tough is what we ate, figuring pork is better well done than rare.

We put away our electric radio-alarm clocks and brought out a trusty windup variety that kept us awake with its maddening ticking.

Going to and from bed got to be a chore, too, especially in the darkness of a winter morning. I always wake up in a deep daze as it is, and groping for a pack of matches and a candle stub was like a "Beat the Clock" stunt.

What's the best way to walk in the dark with a candle? Very, very slowly. Otherwise, things can get very, very hot and your home turns into the House of Wax.

Reading by candlelight requires a lot of patience. Abe Lincoln must have suffered through those long nights, if the legend about his candle-light reading as a youth is true. Maybe they had brighter candles in those days.

To help others who might like to try this experiment, we've devised a short list of candle-power needs. They are:

Checking on pork chops: Three to four candles, but still no guarantee of success.

Reading: Two to three candles, if the print isn't too small.

Eating: Just two will do here. It's kind of romantic.

Shaving: Grow a beard.

Life without electricity is certainly not dull. You might say the use of candles sheds a different light on things. (You might say that — I wouldn't.) Everyday occurrences such as shaving or reading were like new experiences.

Most of the electric machinery normally used was not missed. Television shows were replaced with conversation and a candlelight card game. The change of pace was very relaxing.

Radio and stereo music was replaced by a pleasant quiet. We felt more content; the world no longer seemed rough and boisterous.

Valu-Trim

Eagle's exclusive Valu-Trim process gives you more for your meat dollar. Excess waste and fat is trimmed away before each cut is weighed to give you more servings per pound — and a lower cost per serving.

Honest Labeling

When you have to guess at what you're buying, you're not getting the most for your money. Our Honest Labeling policy eliminates costly guessing. You know exactly what cut of meat you're buying.

Pure Ground Beef

No vegetable product added to our fresh ground beef. You get edible ground beef at Eagle. Ground beef that turns out plump burgers, juicy meat-loaves. And it's ground fresh hourly to assure freshness.

Guaranteed

To assure your complete satisfaction all Eagle Bonded Beef is completely guaranteed. That's the Eagle Bond! Our way of letting you know that Bonded Beef meets our rigid standards, and that we're sure you'll enjoy it completely!

Eagle Bonded Beef gives you more!

If price per pound was all you had to look for, it would be easy to judge where you get the most for your meat dollar. That's a pretty big "IF", because shopping for meat involves more than looking for low prices. Much more. And Eagle does a lot to give you more.
